

JUDICIAL PROCEEDINGS PANEL
REQUEST FOR INFORMATION SET # 5

96. Services: What documents are CMG chairs required to maintain to track retaliation related to sexual assault cases? Is this information tracked anywhere beyond the installation? If so, how and by whom? Provide the sample report an installation CMG Chair maintains to track retaliation in sexual assault cases.

DoD	(DoD SAPRO) At this time, the SARCs are tracking retaliation related to sexual assault cases, not the CMG chairs. Presently, there is no central point for reporting such information within the Department of Defense, such that a higher headquarters would regularly be able to review and assess it. In the forthcoming Retaliation Prevention and Response Strategy (RPRS), the Department has created a strategy for establishing a more formal data collection protocol that will allow for tracking of cases beyond the installation. How and where this information will be collected, stored, and reported has yet to be decided. That being said, the Department anticipates that DSAID will ultimately play a role in data collection and tracking. Implementation details for the short and long term will be addressed in the subsequent implementation planning phase of the RPRS.
USA	The SARB chair is not required to maintain any formal documents that track retaliation related sexual assault cases. The installation SARC is the individual that facilitates the SARB and maintains any documentation for the SARB chair. All information or documents are tracked by the local installation SARC.
USAF	(AF/CVS) Reports of retaliation reported at the CMG are documented within the CMG minutes each month. The commander of the victim provides the plan to the CMG chair where the retaliation will remain on the agenda until case has reached final disposition or has been appropriately addressed according to the installation inspector general and the CMG chair.
USN	The CMG chair does not track retaliation related to sexual assault cases. The information is maintained by the SARC/SAPR VA, VLC, or the victim's commanding officer.
USMC	CMG meeting minutes are the source documents for tracking retaliation not initiated through the IG. The sample at enclosure (4) is an example of how the CMG is documenting a report of retaliation at one Marine Corps installation. In this example, this was the first report; the CMG chair referred the case to NCIS. Follow on discussion/actions will be annotated as part of the next month's CMG. Once referred to NCIS, NCIS would then be tracking relevant information for their records and database. ENCLOSURE: Enclosure (4), Sample Minutes of Sexual Assault Case Management Group (SACMG) Meeting
USCG	The Coast Guard's CITs do not specifically track retaliation related to sexual assault cases.
